Student: "What is the right way to think?"
Professor: "It's all relative . . . "

A Twenty Year Perspective

My mind seems a spinning chiaroscuro compounded of dreams awaiting fulfillment and new areas of endeavor along with poignant memories of lives that have deeply touched my own, and of exciting and often sensitive discussions which, I am sure, have shifted my own views as often as those of you who were my students. Future fireside reminiscences will be immeasurably enriched by letters from graduates whose career decisions resulted from work here at Bates College, by the many heartwarming and sometimes tangy comments on final exam bluebooks, and by echoes of strident voices in class which challenged, "how can you say that?"

There have been many changes at the College since 1965, my first year. It has been a source of incalculable satisfaction to have aided and abetted the growth of the Department of Sociology and Anthropology from two persons to its present complement of seven. Moreover, the Bates' Faculty has doubled over the past twenty years, and given the fact rising costs and shrinking applicant pools have forced many schools to close their doors permanently, this must be seen as a major accomplishment of the Administration. The quality of this Faculty has increased commensurately with its numbers . . . although given the amount and color of my hair, I wince a little at hearing about our bright, dynamic, and young Faculty as though each of those adjectives presumed the existence of the others! The range and quality of offerings, coupled with the intelligence, training and dedication of this excellent faculty have placed Bates College among the finest colleges of its kind in the country — and certainly one of the most academically demanding.

There are, to be sure, some danger signals on the horizon. One bridles under the increasing and arguably inordinate and, thus, debilitating pressure for faculty publication at a teaching oriented institution without allotting time to do so, as is the case in large universities. A second concern arises from a glance at curricular changes and reports of classroom approaches providing reason to wonder if some faculty members who were undergraduates in the heady and cause-oriented days of the 1960's are making the crucial distinction between soapbox polemicism and objective classroom analysis in which all views are carefully considered.

There most assuredly has been a change in the nature of the student body as is evidenced not only by the Porsches, Jaguars, Mercedes and Lamborghinis in student parking areas, but also by the discussions of social stratification in American Society class. This past semester we learned that sixty percent of the class came from backgrounds where parental income exceeded $85,000 per year (almost double my salary in the last year of my career) and that these students were astonished to learn that this placed them in the top two or three percent income-wise in our society. The increasing affluence of students is affecting the College in ways too numerous to cite here. This is in no way intended as a criticism of the Administration, it is simply one of the "givens" of our time if colleges are to survive, particularly under the Reagan philosophy. However, I think that students are more diligent now, albeit not as socially aware and concerned as the conscience-troubled students of the 1960's and early 1970's. Students generally work very hard, but the goals seem less oriented toward changing the society than toward moving up within that society. Yet, there is a very clear thread of quality in Bates students which weaves its way through all time periods and is very appealing. It is compounded of very high intelligence, basic decency, predisposition to give the benefit of the doubt, ebullience and a positive view of life, which makes this place a joy in which to work.

My own many personal failures, such as the inability to rid myself of nervousness prior to entering a classroom or to dissuade the faculty from voting in an incomprehensible "cluster" policy, or even to handle David Nelson's wicked left-handed serve and George Wigton's overhead smashes will, I am certain, be quickly blotted out by time and the memories of the many contacts with the students and faculty. To all of you in the Class of 1986 which this year's Mirror honors, I wish you the very best out there in that complex world of beauty and evil, where the choice is up to you. Be in touch, the chair by the hearth is cozy and the fire burns warm and bright.

— George Fetter was asked by the Editors of the 1986 Mirror to write this selection.

THE CLASS OF 1986

"Welcome, freshmen, to the best years of your lives . . . College. Orientation weekend is one of expectations, hopes, and fears. What happens if I don't like it here? When will I meet my best friend? Who are my friends here? Slowly, after a few Pierce House parties and Chase Hall mixers, we each find a place for ourselves. Soon, those first apprehensions and fears are lost forever behind the life at Bates. More important issues emerged — how will we ever forget when Bates news hit the Boston Globe four years ago . . .? What about the Sadie Hawkins scandal? Do you realize that we are the Last Class of the Traditional SADIE? it is amazing how easily our lives become intertwined with the life here. By Sophomore year, we handled the various "happenings" with grace... Were we worried when the Liquor Commissioner appeared on Campus? It did not seem to stop us. Bates made the news that year also — how did you respond when your parents' friends asked you about sexual harassment? And what about that CBS deal? Bates was almost pro . . . But the big horror was the END OF FISKE — the end of a Bates Tradition. Since that first weekend freshman year, we had heard many stories about the infamous Fiske parties — how could they take them away from us? Sometimes there is no understanding in the world. Junior year we became a divided class; some stayed home while others rambled the world. Even those of us abroad heard the news about the Today Show coverage and the SAT decision. Here or there,it was certainly a year of new experiences and changes. As short-team approached, however, our minds turned to Senior year's activities: thesis, comprehensive exams, and those much-loved gym requirements. Where is the O.C.C. anyway. This year was an active one, don't you think? It's tiring just to watch the progress on the Olin Arts Center. Too bad we will miss the movie premiere next year. And there's that new building that houses Senator Muskie's papers . . . who came for the dedication? GLORIA? Another storm to hit Campus this year concerned human rights — we finally divested from South Africa, and we raised money for the South African Scholarship Drive. But these memories of our four years do not stand alone; how could anyone forget those all-nighters, those runs to Dunkin' Donuts, those long evenings at the Goose, those walks to Qaulity, and the friends that shared all this with us. These are just some of the great memories of our years at Bates, but prepare yourselves, Seniors, for the next best years of your lives . . .

Reflections '85-'86

SEPTEMBER

September is probably most noteworthy for the enthusiasm that it inspires in Batesies as they return to campus after well earned summer vacations. Typically, old friends get reacquainted, freshmen attempt to get acclimated, and the library quad is filled with ultimate Frisbee players. September 1986 was traditional in these respects, but will also be remembered for some of the events that made it unique

The class of 1989, along with the rest of us, was once again forced to grin and bear the overcrowding situation which fortunately did not rival last year's scale. Residents of Pierce, Milliken, Chase, Small, and Wood street houses as well as the Bill, were made familiar with the equation "excessive partying + excessive dorm damage =depressed average GPA." Members of the class of 1987 spent time speculating on whose was the face that broke the ID camera.

The Bates College Concert Series began the last weekend in September with a performance by the group Banchetto Musicale. This event was performed in conjunction with the Maine Humanities Council on "Music in Baroque Culture 1600-1760."

Hurricane Gloria arrived on Friday the 27th, threatening to thwart the plans of alums returning for Back-to-Bates weekend, and others, Jimmy Carter for one, who planned to be present at the dedication of the Edmund S. Muskie Archives. On the 28th, however, Maintenance was aided by early rising students who worked together to undo most of Gloria's damage. Aside from some minor rescheduling, the weekend activities went off smoothly. Highlights included a football game againest Trinity, a Baroque Festival, and the annual Fall Clambake.

In 1630 Thomas Purchase became the first white settler to live in the Lewiston area. At that time, Lewiston was a remote forest area. To support themselves the early inhabitants trapped, fished, and traded with the Native Americans. It is said that Mr. Purchase (like many Americans of the time) was not entirely fair to his Native American trading partners. As a result his house was burned down one winter day when he was away. Perhaps it was this act of aggression that frightened away settlers from the area. More likely it was the heavy forest and the extreme weather that kept Lewiston virtually uninhabited until 1775 when Mr. Garcelon arrived. He helped to make Lewiston a town; it was incorporated on February 18, 1795.

In many ways, though, Lewiston was still a struggling frontier town. Only a small sawmill existed to harness the power of the river. In 1819 the first mill associated with the textile industry was opened, a small carding mill.

What made the potential waterpower of Lewiston so great were two features of the river. First the great drop of the falls, and, second, the natural bend in the river. Local businessmen built a canal in 1851. By the 1860's there were already six large mills taking advantage of the power supplied by the new canal.

The labor for the mills came primarily from Canada. Consequently Lewiston-Auburn earned the appelation "Little Canada". This influx of "Franco-Americans" continued to dominate the culture. By the turn of the century 70 percent of the area workforce was employed in the mills.

It is a little known fact that shortly after the turn of the century, Lewiston-Auburn had some interesting transportational notes to add to history. The Stanley brothers, builders and inventors of the Stanley Steamer, lived in Lewiston. In fact, it was here that the first Stanley Steamer was made. Noteworthy too, were the trolley lines that ran from Lewiston to Boston and then to New York.

Lewiston continued to live on its mills until the development of electricity. Around 1930 the mills were sold and converted to electricity. The mills now had to compete with areas of the country where labor was cheaper. Finally in 1960 the mills were closed for good. Only the Bates Mill — famous for its bedspreads — remains in operation.

OCTOBER

Batesies have always heralded the arrival of October, for with it comes a radiant display of foilage and a necessary commodity called break ! This year was no different. Maine donned her finest Autumn apparel for Parents' Weekend and Halloween.

Parents registered on Friday evening, and that is when the Parents' Weekend fun began. A Planetarium Show illuminated the nighttime sky and was a learning experience for student and parent alike. On Saturday, more parents arrived and went with their children to the Buffet Luncheon in the Merrill Gymnasium. There were myriad choices for the parents as most sport teams played at home, the Stage Band played in Chase Lounge, the film board sponsored "Play it Again Sam", and the Phillips Symposium on Economics discussed the "Outlook for 86". After the day's activities, the Merrimanders and the Deansmen crooned for the folks in Chase Lounge. For dinner, most of Lewiston's finest dining spots were filled with parents and students. To top off the evening, the Bates Modern Dance Company held a concert in Schaeffer Theatre. In addition, parents and their offspring mingled together while Chase Hall sponsored their annual Student/Parent Dance.

Cain M. Rollins '87 was arrested for the attempted murder of Dean of the College James W. Carignan on October 21. Carignan was shot in the back while at home, the bullet missing his heart by 2 mm. He recovered in Central Maine Medical Center and returned to his post in January.

Although October marked only the beginning of the Senior year for some Batesies, the zealous O.C.C. had been reminding us for weeks that graduation was coming sooner than we thought. For other underclassmen the O.C.C. lined up internships, summer jobs, and venture programs.

To end the month Halloween was celebrated with the usual group of ghosties and ghoulies at the Halloween Party in Commons. There were even guest appearances by Uncle Sam, a jammin' martian, and Madonna.

[off campus life]

Boho, granola, new-waver; ah, the magnificent monikers given to those who dwell off campus. But really, we are simply plain old Bates students, just as those who dwell on campus are.

Living off campus can be wonderful: no Commons food, no Commons crowds, no beer soaked dorm lounges. However, living off campus can be exhausting! You have to actually cook, do dishes, empty the kitty litter, trek all the long, tiring way to campus to attend class, to workout, or to visit the library.

So, as you can see, off campus life is neither all good nor all bad. It is however, different. You can have a lot of fun living like a real, independent adult. You have to pay a lot of bills though: rent, groceries, and telephone. None the less, you can really get away from it all. Isolation relaxes the mind, body, and soul.

I think all Bates students should live off campus for at least one year. It really gives a new perspective on Bates and on life in general. Moreover, you realize that there is a Lewiston out there. You may like or dislike Lewiston, but either way you should not forget that it is there. Bates can be too close-knit and tidy at times. You need to get out into the real world.

So, as you can see, off campus life has both benefits and deficiencies. But on campus students shouldn't forget that off campus students go to Bates as well. Some of us, are actually fairly normal-if such a thing is possible! But, at least when off campus, you can be abnormal; in fact you can go stark raving mad whenever you want!

foreign language tables

Foreign Language Tables at Bates are a popular and successful way for many Bates students to try out what they have learned in the classroom. Professors and students meet once a week for dinner to chat and discuss whatever is on their minds in a language that they do not normally speak.

Majors and non-majors alike are provided with the opportunity to speak informally and enhance their verbal skills. Native speakers, students planning to go abroad, and students recently returned from foreign countries all attend to listen and learn with their peers. Most students find the Foreign Language Tables to be inspiring; they see the potential for increased proficiency in their language. One of the greatest assets of a foreign language is being able to speak and communicate in that language. The opportunity for students and professors to get to know one another is also invaluable. The unrestricted and comfortable atmosphere at the Foreign Language Tables themselves allows for better verbal performance by alleviating the academic pressure of the classroom.

The topics discussed range as widely as the participants themselves. For example, the French Table may discuss and critique the available courses of the French department, At the German Table, issues concerning Bates often fill the conversations. The various accents and nuances in vocabulary between Spain and Latin America tend to emerge as topics of conversation at the Spanish Table. Through the chatter and anecdotes, students learn the value of studying abroad and the necessity of practicing the foreign tongue. Professors and students alike agree that the Foreign Language Tables at Bates are a fun and innovative way of learning a new language.

NOVEMBER

On November 1 The American String Quartet, performed for one and one half hours. Mitchell Stern (violin), Daniel Arshalomov (viola), Laurie Carney (violin), and David Berber (cello) performed masterpieces by Shubert and Berg.

November 2 was the laying of the cornerstone for the Olin Arts Center. Using a silver trowel, Bates President Thomas Hedley Reynolds ceremoniously stated that, "Arts have taken hold at Bates." According to President Reynolds, the Arts Center will enable "Bates to hold its own with any small New England college."

On November 7, Ned Harwood, Professor of Art History, entertained a rather large group of students at the Women's Union lounge. He played the guitar and sang various songs from the sixties and early seventies. It was thoroughly enjoyed by those who attended. On the same night Assistant Professor R. Blake Whitaker and Dr. Bach jointly spoke on the biological effects of AIDS and its influence on the general populace.

The Theater Department presented the G.B. Shaw classic Major Barbara, directed by Paul Kuritz. The play was a smashing success and proved to be a delightfully entertaining show for the audience.

Triad Weekend started with a performance by The Brood, an all female band from Portland. They write many of their own songs which are reminiscent of the 1960's psychedelic garage sound. A fun, off-beat way to begin Triad weekend, The Brood drew a nice crowd to the Den. The annual Triad Dance, hosted by the Afro-Am Society, was the entertainment most chosen for Saturday night. This event provided three rooms with different musical themes. Jazz, Reggae, and popular music in video form pleased a diverse group of music lovers.

Dean Carignan's condition after receiving a gun shot wound while at home on October 21 continued to improve throughout the month. However, Dean Carignan did not resume his duties as Dean of the College until January.

Many talented musicians performed for the Bates community throughout the month. In particular, Mary Hunter playing two sonatas by Antonio Vivaldi on a baroque violin. Assisting her in the noonday concert were, Miriam Barndt-Webb and James Parakilas. Another campus musician, Tom Erskine played some wonderful piano pieces as part of the Women's Union musical series. John Corrie of the Music Department performed Bach's Italian Concerto on the harpsicord in the Chapel.

A more vigorous study break was the Annual Turkey Trot race. The three mile run around campus gave everyone a chance to get some exercise and have fun with friends. Eight teams of four participants each entered the race; they ran through a wet and dreary Sunday afternoon. A good time was had by both spectators and participants.

The Representative Assembly kicked off their $4,400 South African scholarship fund on November 18. The scholarship gives two South African non-white students the opportunity to attend a university in their country. President of the College Thomas Hedley Reynolds commenced the drive with a personal contribution.

The highlight of the month came on November 20 at the annual Downeast Harvest Dinner in Commons. Unlike the usual mundane meals, Wednesday night Bates students sat down to a feast of lobster, steamers, steak, and many more delicious foods. It was a meal fit for a king and a wonderful way for Bates students to share Thanksgiving dinner together.

Junior Year Abroad. This is an expression that many underclassmen often hear, but may be very detached from. The reasons that provoke many into leaving Bates for their Junior year are at best varied. Many are just looking for a change of scenery, some are hoping to improve their foreign language proficiency in a natural environment, while others are excited by foreign intrigue and wanderlust.

It is the many varied reasons for leaving that dictate the choice of foreign destination. However, what all returnees find they have in common is a new perspective on the land that they call home. This new perspective is given by the fact that the land that they had visited was most probably smaller in both geographic and population terms, and American English was not the language spoken. Although certain Americanisms would have been comfortably found near by (a certain soft drink in a red & white can with the old fashioned tab-top as well as that hamburger restaurant with the red (western red) sign and golden something), these would soon give way to Chip Shops & Blackcurrent or Ein Currywurst und ein Bier, bitte . . . .

Naturally, part of the experience is meeting new people. This is more difficult than one might expect and is perhaps the most difficult aspect of the J.Y.A. experience. One soon learns that Americans are generally a very social and mobile lot — they are very willing to meet new people. Europeans, however, are more reserved and cautious. Before they are willing to commit themselves to a friendship, they must judge you worthy.

Perhaps the root of the most fun as well as embarrassment is cultural mores. Do you rinse your dishes after washing them in soap suds? Many people in Europe don't. Those Americans, they're so bloody health conscious . . . And have you seen who's on page 3 today . . . ?

Thus the reasons may be varied, but the results are the same, Junior Year Abroad can be the best learning experience that you may ever have outside a classroom (unfortunately, JYA classroom work is also mandatory). So the word is Go! You have nothing to lose!

DECEMBER

December for many people may just have been the month for finals, however, there were other events that took place in the two weeks that we were at Bates. Human Rights Week, sponsored by Amnesty International, began this chilly month on a serious tone. Movies and a lecture illustrated the suffering that many of our brothers have undergone and still live under. Our awareness of world injustices was heightened.

The noonday concert series continued through December, beginning with a recorder quartet. The combination of Bates faculty members Mary Hunter, Anne Lee, and Georgia Nigro, along with Lewiston resident Todd Hollister, proved to be enjoyable one. This was only one of the many instances where the Bates community and the community at large joined forces to share their talent. The Bates Choir and Chapel Singers gave a wonderful seasonal concert. Also taking advantage of the holiday season were the Bates Deansmen and Merimanders who, along with the Williams E-Phlats, entertained an enthusiastic crowd in Commons.

Many students took advantage of the last weekend before finals to catch up on missed readings and reviewing. Although some took in the Film Board movie, Dirty Harry, the Bates campus was overwhelmed with silence and an attitude of concentration. There was not a single empty carrel to be found in the library and students were scattered on the floor and in the stairwells. However, many did enjoy a few study breaks, including the Folk Music Coffeehouse with Jenny Levison in Chase lounge. The Campus Association once again aided the blurry eyed by offering coffee, tea, and conversation all through finals week. The stress of exams continued to be the focal point until we left for a well deserved break.

rocking horse center

Most students who travel down College Street usually have the intention of visiting friends that live in nearby houses or stopping at Quality for some munchies. Only a small number of Batesies notice the cream colored building with the purple trim that is a great asset to the community. This building, located at 134 College Street, is the Rocking Horse Child Care Center. Under the direction of Karla Downs, the center has been in operation since March of 1985. Downs,the Director of the facility, handles the employment end of the business and acts as an educational leader as well. This center is just one of many located on the East Coast that are all directed by Robert L. Willis.

The need for the center arose out of the increasing financial demands placed on the adult members of our society. To retain a comfortable lifestyle, both parents of many households have to work, which causes a problem if young children are also in the household. Child care centers are one solution to this problem. The Rocking Horse Child Care Center fulfills the need of both local Lewiston residents and members of the Bates faculty by providing a "home away from home" for the children of these working parents.

Often many parents are hesitant to place their children in someone else's hands for fear that the children will not receive the attention that they deserve. This local center combats this fear by employing more than twenty teachers at the center, all who have had some type of previous experience working in child care. Therefore these teachers are aware of the children's needs and can help care for them — to the satisfaction of both the parent and the child.

The type of program offered at the Rocking Horse Child Care Center also caters to the different developmental needs of the child including intellectual, social, physical, and emotional needs. The activities used in the program are arranged in relation to the different age groups of the children. The infants that are cared for (the youngest averaging six weeks old), are exposed to a greater variety of visual stimulation and are "encouraged to develop their own special skills faster." The preschool children are involved in a greater amount of physical activities, and are taught to develop "readiness skills". They are encouraged to ask questions and solve problems. The older children, ages six through twelve, take part in a variety of activities since they are generally at the center after school is out. Involvement in arts and crafts, sports, and even cooking are merely a few of the activities that these children engage in.

The Rocking Horse Child Care Center involves not only the faculty, but the students of the Bates community. A few students from the college are employed at the center; they help and advise the older children with their activities. The faculty at Bates also benefits greatly from the center. The Rocking Horse Child Care Center provides a necessary service to the general community. Although it is only celebrating its first birthday, the past year has been advantageous to all those who have been associated with the center, and it will hopefully continue to be so in the years to come.

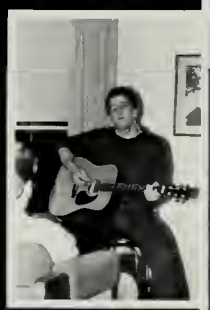
[frye st. union]



The new student center at Women's Union, an idea sparked by Dean Carignan, was created to add another dimension to the social life at Bates. It was designed to provide an opportunity for different kinds of social activities, particularly those that cannot easily be accommodated in the limited facilities of Chase Hall.

The Women's Union features furnished lounges on three floors, a projection cable TV with VCR, a piano, full kitchen facilities with an elegant dining room and china, board games of all kinds, pool table, and is open to all students.

In the past year, the new Student Center also sponsored several weekly series including old movies on Sunday afternoons, Wednesday night poetry readings, and Thursday night coffeehouses with both student and faculty performers. The coffeehouses were a particular success with a variety of Bates talent including Blane Parry, Jim McAllister, Diane Murphy, Jenny Levison, Dave Walton, Scott Steinberg, and Bob Thomas.

In its first year, the Center's success was highly dependent upon student imagination. Since its start, many events such as the theater production Extremities , a 20's theme party, private dinners, slumber parties, senior suppers, a Little Brother/Little Sister Halloween party, and afternoon teas have taken place in the Women's Union Center.

JANUARY

We returned from a much needed Christmas break ready to start anew; everyone glad that Dean Carignan had recovered and was ready to resume his role in the administration.

We continued our vacation a little the first weekend; afterall who could resist the fun of Winter Carnival? The activities, ranging from creating snow sculptures to the Winter Olympics, all contributed to make "Snowbiz" a great success. The comedy team of Abrams and Anderson started us off on Thursday followed by the amazing talents of hypnotist James Mapes Friday. After a hard day of traying, we danced the night away to the sounds of the Drive. Sunday night was filled with the Winter Carnival Concert with Eddie Kendricks and David Ruffin of The Temptations, New Man, an up-and-coming band from Boston, as well as the hilarious antics of comedian Jay Leno. It was certainly a night to remember and the perfect way to round out a fantastic weekend.

The next weekend held equal promise with WRBC's Trivia Night and the Bates College Imperialists Casino Night. The hectic race to answer questions about nothing continued again this year as teams stayed up all night vying for points and prizes to determine who was the king of trivia at Bates. Saturday we chanced Lady Luck as Chase Hall was converted into a Las Vegas casino. While some of us lost, others won small fortunes and the evening was enjoyed by all. In addition to gambling we were treated to a dose of the latest fad — wrestlemania.

All was not fun and games however, as we remenisced about Dr. Martin Luther King and his valuable contributions during a moving Candlelight Service. Our concerns with minority rights continued as we examined discrimination against homosexuals at Bates with gay politician David Scondras. Finally in a much awaited decision, the Board of Trustees voted total divestment from South Africa. The campus seemed to unanimously support this decision, hoping at the same time to set an example for other colleges.

We ended the month with an effort to Bust MS; the first of the Multiple Sclerosis Dances raised five hundred dollars for this worthy cause. At the same time we enjoyed watching friends dress up and lip synch to the sounds of our favorite rock artists. Overall, it was a great way to help others while having a good time. As the month closed we were looking forward to February, to break, and perhaps even anticipating the coming of spring and a little bit of color. Afterall, how much snow can a person take?

olin arts center

To the graduates of '86 the Olin Arts Center will be remembered as a pile of earth or a partially constructed building. To many of us the Olin Arts Center will serve as a symbol of Bates progress in the years that we spent here.

The building is named for the Olin Foundation of New York City which contributed the funds — the largest grant ever received by Bates — to build and equip the structure. The arts center was designed by the Architects Collaborative of Cambridge, Massachusetts, the same firm which created the designs for the Ladd Library and the Merrill Gymnasium.

The focal point of the new complex is a 300 seat multi-level auditorium, intended primarily for music and dance performance, as well as films and lectures. Other music facilities will include a rehearsal hall, individual and group practice rooms, a music library, and two electronic music labs outfitted with state-of-the-art equipment for composing computer generated music. The gemstone of the visual arts facilities at the Olin Arts Center will be a new enlarged gallery.

The Olin grant attracted much attention as one of the largest single amounts awarded to any college by any foundation during the 1983-84 academic year. The competition for such monies is keen, with selection based on not only a demonstrated need but also on the excellence of academic programs at the schools under consideration.

The laying of the cornerstone for the Olin Arts Center at Bates College took place on November 2, 1985. Encased in the cornerstone of the new building, currently under construction and scheduled for completion in the fall of 1986, will be a time capsule containing memorabilia of the college and the community. Among the items will be a Bates catalog and student newspaper, front pages from both a local newspaper and the New York Times, and an audio tape of the initial announcement of the Olin Arts Center grant receipt in March of 1984, including a speech of Olin Foundation director Robert Moss.

FEBRUARY

Winter was in full swing when February started. And with the blustery cold came the flooding of Rand basement. The cold weather also served to motivate students to take part in Amnesty International's letter writing campaign. This campaign was designed for students to express their views about intervention in Central America to the Maine Congressional Leaders. That same week students were made aware of Cambodia Refugees' problems by lecturer Dr. Robert Weiss . Diane Murphy '86 premiered her soundtrack to Jean Vigo's A Propos de Nice at this time also. Finishing the week, the annual Beaux Arts Ball sponsored an eve of Town and Country . While some "Madison Avenue Heroes" jammed to the sounds of the City, others danced to the music of the Whistling Thieves who played music for square, contra, and circle dances. The next night, the first M/S Dance was under way with such rock personalities as Boy George, Bruce Springsteen and Stevie Wonder.

The week before vacation was packed with midterms, papers and all around general frenzy as we tried to get ahead so that we could leave for the vacation. Some athletic teams went as far as California to "practice" during break, while other Batesies headed south to Florida. Still others preferred to move north for a week of skiing. Then, of course, there were many of us who stayed home and slept.

After such a vacation, we returned to face the music of our midterms or even to start round two of the testing process. Moreover, we all also had to face a much more serious reality of life upon our return to Bates. A memorial service was held for student Elizabeth Casey in the College Chapel on the Tuesday after break. This week proved to be a very trying time for us all. However, just as we started to wonder if we would ever make it through the semester, Short Term enrollment gave us hope for a future of fun and sunshine without quite so many pressures.

The final week in February hosted a heated International Debate which asked the question "Are Chopsticks Better than Flatware?" Though the question was never really answered, members of the Bates Debate Council and students from Kitakyushu University of Japan presented convincing arguments in support of both sides.

On Wednesday of this week through the Bates College Concert Series , Speculum Musicae presented "The Fugitive Slave," a narrative of a nineteenth century Cuban slave that was composed of baritone, flute, guitar, and sixty percussion instruments.

Finally, the last day of February marked the opening nights of both theatrical productions Miss Julie and Extremities . In addition, the Bates Christian Fellowship sponsored a dance in the upstairs lounges of Chase Hall, and the Senior Class held a "95 Days Until Graduation" party at Quality Inn. All in all, February proved to be a varied and busy month.

[little bro/sis]

The Little Brother/Little Sister Program, an offshoot of the Campus Association, had another successful year during 1985-86 with the largest amount of active Big Brothers and Sisters in the history of the program. Over 50 first time Big Brothers and Sisters were matched with Lewiston/Auburn children, raising the number of participants to a grand total of 175.

A Get Acquainted Barbecue was held in early September in the library quad to kick off the year. It was a perfect September afternoon complete with hamburgers, hotdogs, sun, and soccer on the quad.

During the year, the arts and crafts room in Chase Hall was well used and the rest of the student body looked forward to seeing the kids at sporting events or struggling with trays in Commons.

Frye Street Center was transformed into a haunted house for Halloween with the help of a few overactive imaginations, a lot of cobwebs, plastic spiders, and the tricks of the Physics department.

Second semester brought a huge ice cream bash for Big and Little brothers and sisters — many dinners were spoiled that afternoon! As the snow melted, varied and spirited get-togethers were planned in order to take advantage of the warm spring sun.

The Little Brother/Little Sister program provides a valuable service to improve relations between Bates and the surrounding communities.

Students Against Multiple Sclerosis (SAMS) is just what it says ... Students leading the battle to bust MS, a major disease of young adults between the ages of 18 and 34, which affects the central nervous system. The fund raising component of SAMS was the Rock Alike Event, a lip-synch contest in cooperation with Music Television, which took place simultaneously in February, Bust MS Month , on campuses nationwide. Bates was able to raise nearly $2000, and hopefully in the future, this will be a continuing tradition.

MARCH

The month of March tends to be a very long one on this campus. Although most people would tend to account this never-ending month to the fact that it is the only month throughout the academic year which does not have a vacation, I would suggest that the longevity of this month is caused by the overwhelming list of due dates, events, and activities which occur annually during this time.

Many Seniors spent this month researching, writing (and writing and writing), and revising that infamous "Senior Thesis." For many, I am sure, much of this month remains a blur. This was also a time for Senior presentations; music majors Scott Steinberg and Dan Ludden performed for the Bates Community. Most Seniors did not question the length of March, but rather, whether they would make it through the month in one piece!

March proved to be a very international month on Campus. The first of March brought a taste of the Old Country — there was a Pipe Band Concert with Highland Dancers and Bagpipes in the Chapel. The Foreign Language Department also sponsored a Film Festival; this year's festival, America(ns) through foreign Lenses in Foreign Lands , brought a variety of movies to Bates: Stroszek (West Germany, 1977), Kagemusha (Japan, 1980), One Sings, the other doesn't (France, 1977), Reds (Russia), and The Good Fight (Spain, 1983). The annual International Dinner in Chase Lounge happened to fall in the middle of this film festival, making the beginning of March a very busy time for the internationally oriented students on Campus.

In mid-March, the Bates College Concert Series continued with the performance of Music from the People's Republic of China. Seven instrumentalists from the Beijing Conservatory played traditional music from several regions of China.

The week of March 16-24 was Central America Week nationwide and at Bates. The week was to mark the anniversary of the assassination of Archbishop Oscar Romero of El Salvador. The New World Coalition planned a week of activities including a number of films, documentaries, lectures, and slide shows. On Tuesday of that week, Francisco Campbell, Councilor of the Nicaraguan Embassy in Washington, D.C., spoke to an attentive audience in the Chapel. He discussed the political situation in his country as he observed it. Tommie Sue Montgomery, Professor of Political Science at Dickinson College and author of many books on the subject of Central America, also spoke as a part of this commemoration.

On the lighter side of things, there were a large number of Faculty and Student Coffeehouses during the month of March. As well as the weekly performances in Women's Union there were also performances in the Den and Chase Hall. Moreover, the Theater Department presented the play Bad Habits in mid-March; this hilarious presentation helped many of us relax and forget our own difficulties for a while.

Some other Batesies were able to laugh a little (much to the dismay of some) in Alumni Gym when the comedy group We can make you laugh visited Bates. This group offered $25.00 to any person who could maintain a straight face on stage. Apparently, it was a pretty happy crowd since the comedians only gave up $75.00.

At the end of the month, Bates talent presented itself in the form of Merging Motion , the annual Spring Dance production. This production, mostly choreographed by Bates students, was performed by the Bates Modern Dance Company.

And finally . . . the month ended with Easter and a weekend break for those who went home to celebrate with their families. For others, the warm southern breeze and slightly stronger sun rays had to suffice. Somehow, we made it!

muskie archives

Former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie, Former President Jimmy Carter, Governor Joseph E. Brennan, and a variety of other dignitaries came to Bates on September 28 to dedicate the Edmund S. Muskie Archives. Barely missing the havoc caused by Hurricane Gloria and the campus uproar caused by Back-to-Bates weekend, the dedication ceremonies went off without a hitch.

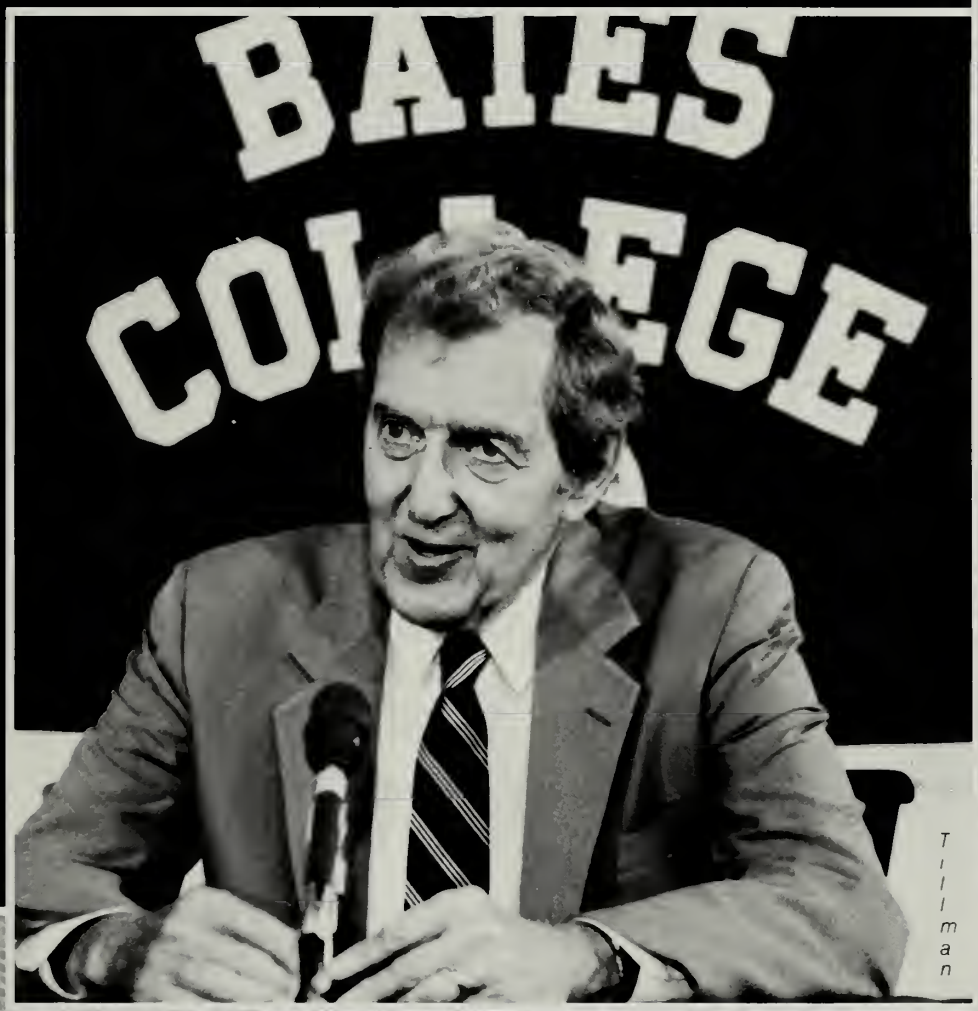
Muskie's day was filled with a tour of the archives, a press conference, a dedication ceremony including addresses from President of the College T. Hedley Reynolds, Former President Jimmy Carter, and Muskie himself, the conferral of an honorary doctor of laws degree, and a private reception at Reynold's home.

Muskie was born on March 28, 1914 in Rumford. He is the second of six children. In 1936 he graduated from Bates as a cum laude member of Phi Beta Kappa and class president. After graduating from Cornell Law School in 1939, he enlisted in the U.S. Navy and served in both the Atlantic and Pacific.

Muskie was elected to the Maine House of Representatives in 1946, 1948, and 1950. He served as minority leader during his second and third terms. From 1951 to 1952 he served as the State Director of the Office of Price Stabilization and was the Democratic National Committeeman from 1952 to 1956.

Elected Governor of Maine in 1954, Muskie served two terms before being elected to the United States Senate in 1958. During his 22 years in the Senate, he served on the Foreign Relations, Governmental Affairs, and Environment and Public Works committees, and he chaired the Senate Committee on the Budget. In 1968 Muskie was the Democratic nominee for Vice-President. He was sworn in as the 58th Secretary of State in May 1980, and served until January 1981.

Very detailed information concerning Muskie and his life will be housed in the archives. The building, which is totally accessible to the handicapped, has a microfilm room where everything ever written by or about Muskie is stored. Through computers this archival library is tied into other archives, as well as Bates' Prime mainframe computer. A receptionist uses the computers to assist researchers in finding desired information. A reading room is available for research; a typing room is open for transcribing. The extensive storage area will maintain all materials in a constant environment while making the most of available space. The Muskie Room is available for small meetings, speaking engagements, and receptions. It is equipped with a kitchen, working fireplace, and display cases.



APRIL

April was truly a strange month. We lived through two extremes of the academic program during this month. Our first two weeks were spent in frenzied activity — first trying to catch up on all our assignments, and then trying to study for those final, final exams. On the third week, almost everyone left for a break from Bates — some left for the summer while others departed for only a brief time. And finally, the infamous Short-Term commenced during the fourth week of April.

A number of events — besides studies or the lack thereof — also took place at this time. Mark Kantor and Miriam Wold opened an exhibition of their Senior Thesis art work in Chase Hall on April 2. Also, the Bates College-Community Chamber Orchestra performed in the Chapel on Sunday, April 6. This concert featured The Carnival of the Animals by Saint-Saens.

Starting the last week in April and continuing throughout May, a number of French enthusiasts met three days a week to speak a little French at the French Table. The general trend during the last week in April, however, was toward fun, sun, and total relaxation . The first dance of Short-Term portrayed this movement quite well; students welcomed in the summer a bit early with "A Summer Celebration" on Saturday, April 26. Unfortunately, the sun and warmer weather did not arrive until later in May.

[bates haunts]

Monday . . . Tuesday . . . Wednesday . . . Thursday . . . FRIDAY . . . SATURDAY . . . Sunday, too! Where can you find the greatest number of Batesies per square foot in the Lewiston area? My first guess — except maybe for Pierce House on Wednesday nights, but I wouldn't know since I've never been there then — would definitely be The Blue Goose Tavern . My second guess might be The Station (found right next to the Goose) or The Knotty Pine (found in the Androscoggin), which seemed to come into its own this year. Probably last — but certainly not least — would be The Cage with its infamous Burgers & Brew.

So how important are these places to the Bates Experience? They must be fairly important since a few sets of parents felt it necessary to check out the Goose during Parent's Weekend in October . . . Moreover, when one father was introduced to Mike (the owner), he grinned and thanked him: "You paid my rent last year."

So what makes these places special? Well, it's certainly not the decor or the overwhelming selection of beverages. It might be the video machines or the Pool Tables, but I think that the fact that these places are within walking distance of Campus has much to do with their popularity. However, this theory does not work so well with the Knotty Pine which, though fur ther away, was quite a crowd-drawer this year. Many Bates students performed for the crowds at this Lewiston night spot.

Further away in Portland, a few students have discovered the friendly pub atmosphere of Three Dollar Deweys , where the popcorn is free and imported drafts are a specialty. It is rumoured that one yearbook editor has enjoyed a pint or two of Guiness down there . . . .

[the den]

DEN BREAK . . . AT 10

Although predominantly a library cliche, this phrase can be heard all over campus day and night. Generally, the Bobcat Den seems to be one of the most popular spots on Campus — for students, faculty, and staff members. In the early morning hours, there are usually a number of people enjoying a first cup of coffee before class or work . . . Lunchtime brings in a varied crowd — many library and Lane Hall people have been spotted there along with the "off campus" people (who do not have to eat upstairs with the other 99% of Bates students!)

Wm. Rittase

In the late afternoon and evening, the Den is quite relaxing. It is usually not too crowded — while, on the other hand, it is still full enough to provide an interesting partner for some interesting conversation. At this time of day, however, students are more likely to be sitting alone studying, reading, or sleeping. It is at this time also that the "Den Rats" tend to appear. This group of Bates students have yet to be accepted formally as a College Organization; however, they probably meet more regularly than any other group on campus. The purpose of this "club" is to drink large amounts of coffee or tea at one sitting and always make sure that one corner of the Den is fully occupied at all times.

By late evening, the Den becomes a pit of procrastination. Although no formal studies have been done, there must be times when there are more people in the Den than in the library. This is a time of exuberant conversation and much noise (in fact, you usually end up trying to yell over the noise of the juke box!!) and equally exuberant munching. During the infamous "Den break at 10" there is often a line extending back towards the entrance.

And, of course, who could describe the Den without mentioning the friendly staff who run it so well? The Den is an integral part of the life at Bates. Whether just a place to get a bag of ice for an athletic injury (or for other assorted activities!!) or a "home away from home," the Bobcat Den is, as it has been in the past, an important aspect of our Campus.

[the foreign experience]

As a transfer student from Argentina, I have spent two years at Bates. It is an honor for me to be able to graduate from such a fine school, and it is definitely the greatest accomplishment of my life. I will always treasure every single day spent at Bates because it has broadened my horizons greatly and has taught me many unforgettable lessons — not only from the courses I have taken, but also about myself as a human being.

I would like to leave a message for all those who do not enjoy the social life at Bates: make of everyday the greatest experience of your life. Open your minds and hearts, there is a lot to learn and to strive for, a lot to give and take, and a lot of love to spread.

— Andrea Elholm was asked by The Mirror to reflect upon her Bates experience.

THE LEAVES FALL

the desire of motion to slow and be pure color, the movement of the dancer diffused through time,
a moment's concentration cannot distinctly save either being or becoming we doubt the color that the flower holds,
as we doubt the season through which we walk, and look, at our hands . . .
what are we holding? for what are we trying to reach?
we walk, neither pausing nor exactly advancing,
always uncertain, between this gallery or that stage:
a dark hallway . . . and the question, "who . . . ?"
to save the flower one must try to become the flower, to save the spring one must be the spring.
let everything about you breathe the colors you express, let life curl softly inside you, gently glowing:
the color of waterlilies held on calm water,
the shape of a wave rolling towards the sun.

A CLASS ACT

by Marc Desjardins

The Bates Bobcat's 1985 cross country season was a definite highlight in the long outstanding career of Coach Walter Slovenski. The Bates harriers finished with an undefeated record of 19-0 including impressive victories in the NESCAC, Maine State, and New England Championship.

The Bobcats had impressive front running from its two All-American co-captains, John Fitzgerald and Mark Hatch. Their early season success helped Bates achieve victories over Brandeis, New Hampshire, Bowdoin, and Southern Maine.

Bates continued to dominate the competition outclassing the field in the first annual Southern Maine Invitational. The following week, Bates traveled to Colby for the annual State of Maine meet. The projected favorites, Bates ran one of their best races of the season, defeating all Maine teams soundly by placing three runners on the All-State roster.

The Open New England Championships were probably the harrier's worst performance. The cold, wet conditions dampened the enthusiasm for top rate performances, and forced Bates to protect themselves against serious injuries.

The New England Division III Championship held at SMU, was perhaps the finest meet ever run by a Bates team. Mark Hatch finished second, John Fitzgerald placed third, and Mark Desjardins captured fifth place, to help the Bobcats clinch the N.E. Div. III title by four points over Brandeis.

The following weekend, Hatch, Fitzgerald, and Desjardins flew down to Atlanta, Georgia, to compete in the Div. III National Championships. Fitzgerald, who was in fifth place with less than a half-mile to finish, collapsed of heat exhaustion. However, Hatch ran well (22nd) to claim his second All-American honors, and Desjardins determined attitude earned him 33rd place.

CARRY ON, HARRIERS !!

The Women's Cross country team went through a season of "ups" and "downs' ending in an "up" with the a fine showing at Franklin Park in Boston. Despite the injuries which plagued certain team members, the runners vastly improved their times over the season. Coach Carolyn Court praised the impressive time loss over the season in an interview for the Student. She cited Gretchen Ehret, Pam Oest, Amy Jones and Jeanette McWham as definite achievers during the season. In addition Kerry O'Leary, Sarah Alspach and Captain Betty Barr contributed to make the season a success.

Coach Court also commented on the future potential for next year, "There are a lot of freshman and sophomores, and I think they didn't give themselves credit for being good and running with the leaders." Next year can only be a success with such talent waiting in the wings.

WINNING STICK WOMEN

by S, J and K

The Bobcat stick women continued the tradition of a winning record this year. The 1985 season tested the determination to overcome a below .500 record and finish 7-4-2 overall. Because of our past success our opponents thought of us as the team to beat. This called for an extra effort by Bates. Ultimately we conquered and came out with the forth consecutive Maine State Championship title. That victory over the University of Southern Maine was just what the seniors ordered to top off their four very successful years. We are all proud of this achievement and pass it down gladly to future teams.

The junior varsity squad under coach Coffey ranked up a great record of 6-1-2. Team Captains Jane Spadorcia and Sue Chick were selected for the Maine All-State team and Chick was also honored in being selected for the regional All-American Team and honorable mention for the National All-American Team.

Fun facts: No preseason pool party . . . acorn eating . . . who doesn't bloomers . . . track workouts . . . spaghetti . . . pajama practice and shower curtain and cap . . . Suzanne's new colour scheme . . . no team hugs . . .

Our thanks to our coaches and fans. We had a great and fun 1985 season.

A LONG SEASON

by Ron Schneider

The 1985 Bobcats football team had great potential. In the words of senior running back, John Boyle, the offense was "explosive". They had a very good chance of ending the season with an astonishing 6-2 record. They had senior quarterback Ron Garrison throwing to Cliff Hicks, Bill Dunn and Dave Campbell while handing off to John Boyle and Chris Hickey. The defense was mostly young and inexperienced, but had some very good leadership in Rico Corsetti, Dean Lindner and Bob Donahue. Despite the potential, Bates ended the season at a very disappointing 3-5, beating only WPI, Tufts and Colby.

The team started the season by losing to Amherst, the toughest competition they would face. Bates tried, but lost 21-10. Next came two heartbreaking losses to Trinity and Hamilton with Bates losing three points to each team. In each game, the 'cats had a chance for big play in the last minute of the game, but as fate would have it, they were turned away.

With a 0-3 record, Bates played Middlebury, in Vermont. Middlebury was also 0-3. At the end of the weekend, the Bobcats were a dreadful 0-4 and Middlebury was 1-3.

Over October break, Bates bested WPI. John Boyle broke Bates' rushing record with 187 yards. The following week he rushed 235 yards in a 56-0 romp over the pitiful Colby Mules. Bates was rolling off a two game winning streak hoping to salvage the season at .500. However, the Bowdoin Bears would not let that happen. Despite the large imported Bates crowd, Bates lost yet another game. In the Bowdoin game, Boyle injured his knee but continued to play gaining 97 yards.

For the Tufts game, Boyle was on crutches. His chances for the Bates all-time rushing record were squashed, missed by 200 yards. Bates won the last game with two long bombs from Garrison to Hicks in the fourth quarter. One of the bombs set a Bates record for the longest pass — 91 yards. Bates graduated 12 seniors and looks forward to a better season next year.

RUGBY PRIDE

by Eric Edstrom

In 1985-86 the Bates College Rugby Football Club continued its nine year tradition of rigorous athletic competion, academic excellence, service to the college community and sociopathic behavior. The Bates Ruggers enjoyed the most successful year in the team's history, suffering only one loss in an otherwise perfect season. This record is the result of the hard work, pride and dedication of every member of the club, each of whom cannot be mentioned here.

Over the summer, Fixture Secretary Christopher Walsh put together a six game schedule while co-captains Eric Denny and Daniel F. Mahoney III planned punishing work-outs and sophisticated game strategies. Ninety candidates came to the first practice sessions and the best forty were choosen to make up the Bates A and B sides. The co-captains prepared the teams for the season with the help of Angus MacLeod of St. Andrew's University, Scotland. Angus's expertise and enthusiasm had a profound influence on the club's season and he will always be remembered with affection as a great friend of the Bates R.F.C.

During the season the A team's performance on the field was characterized by agressive running, accurate passing and a superb kicking game. Each of our opponents discovered that Bates Ruggers tackle with stopping power akin to that of a .357 magnum. The season reached a climax on Parent's Weekend when Bates clinched the CBB title with a 16-0 win over the Bowdoin All-Blacks.

The B side enjoyed mixed success this season but improved as the year went on. The underclassmen who make up the B squad will ensure continued success of the Bates College R.F.C. in the years to come.

The Club sponsored several fund-raising activities including the annual Rugby Oktoberfest. This evening of debauchery included the Rugby Player Slave Auction, an appearance by the 1986 Maine Potato Queen and a dwarf-throwing contest.

ELEGANT VIOLENCE

by Beth Landry & Anne Robertson

With only one loss, the Bates Women's Rugby Club had its best season ever. The enthusiasm of both the returning veterans and the rookies was the key to this success. The 24 member club began its season with a close win against Bowdoin. Junior Kellie Thibodeau scored the try, and senior Lisa Ballek kicked the extra point (her first attempt ever!). After a scoreless match with Williams, the Bobcats lost to Colby. The only try was scored by senior veteran Beth Landry.

Parent's Weekend the Bobcats played the Dartmouth Rugby Club for the first time. Bates dominated the match which ended in a 0-0 tie. The women ruggers were victorious over Bowdoin in an end of the season triumph. The tries were scored by freshman Wendy Lister and senior co-captain Susan McCulley. The Club's success and popularity has grown steadily since its beginning four years ago.

FORWARD ON!

by Ben Robinson

Although the 4-9-1 record of the Bates Men's Varsity soccer team may have been somewhat of a dissappointment, they earned respect in the eyes of many and gained the confidence which could make this young squad very successful in the near future. Lead by seniors Doug Bolton, Ben Robinson, and John Stewart, the squad found themselves very competitive as they were faced with one of the toughest schedules in New England.

The team was very exciting to watch as their explosive offense more than made up for last year's scoring difficulties by doubling the offensive output. The offense was complimented by All-Maine selections Alex Palacios and Justin Ward who were supported by goal keeper Doug Bolton maintaining the backfield control. The deep bench of strong reserves was important in the consistent play through the season.

ALIVE AND KICKING!

by Diane Murphy

The Bates College Women's Soccer Team enjoyed it's finest season ever this year. Under the leadership of senior co-captains Denise Barton and Diane Murphy, the Bobcats finished their regular season with a record of 12 wins, no losses and 1 tie, enough to capture the number one position for New England Division III soccer. The highlight of the regular season was an unprecedented victory (2-1) over the Bowdoin Bears, breaking their winning streak of 46 NIAC victories, before a huge Bates crowd which traveled to Brunswick to cheer on the Bobcats.

The outstanding record qualified the women from Bates for both the NIAC and ECAC tournaments, of which they chose to participate in the latter. While hosting the tournament, they beat the Brandeis Judges in semi-final action by a score of 6-1, and dropped a 4-3 decision to the booters of Smith College in double overtime.

Post season honors for indivual Bobcats included the selection of Denise Barton and Nadia White for the All-New England second team. CBB All-Stars drawn from the Bobcat ranks were Barton, White, Sandy Kapsalis, and Deb Sullivan, while NEWISA Choice for the Senior All-Star Bowl was Diane Murphy.

The unusual success can be attributed to the hard work of the players and the fine coaching of head coach Diane Boettcher and assistant coaches Brian Schacter and senior Michael Meehan.

ON THE BALL!

Women's Tennis finished the season off with an overall 6-5 record. The season's record was in part due to the successful efforts of team 1 players Caitlin Dyk, Heidi Niit, and Andrea Elhom. Their talent, combined with team 2, which was led by players Ashley Parker and Alice Danielson, led to a particularly rewarding season despite several team injuries.

Coach Wigton was especially proud of the team as he told a Student reporter, "The team met all my expectations. I was pleased by the way the doubles came through, especially at the New Englands." Although some great talent will be missed next year, the team potential is high and next year will be a super chance to exploit that talent!

DOMINATION!

by M. Graef & S. McSweeney

The Bates women's teams of late are a series of success stories to which the volleyball team is no exception. The season began with a string of six victories before taking second place in the tough Roger Williams tournament to the host school. Throughout the season, Bates College plainly dominated the college scene in Maine, losing only to USM and ending the season with an overall record of 21-1. To cap off a fine season, the Bates Volleyball team totally dominated the State Championship Tournament at Husson College, defeating every other team in just two games.

Members of the Bates team were given high honours for their fine efforts throughout the season. Emily Gabler and Deb Smith were voted to the First Team All-State. Co-captain seniors Sarah McSweeney and Millie Rey were effective leaders and players for the victorious Bobcats.

State Champions was a great way to end the season and a title Bates intends to hold for a while. This year state champs, next year . . . watch out NIAC!!

January rain is laughing:
An early jest for

January rain is snickering:
Wary faces cloaked

The inability to win the close games cost the Bobcats dearly this year as seven games were lost by four or fewer points. Senior Captain David Kennedy led the team in scoring and established a new Bates career scoring record with 1600 points, breaking the eighteen year old record of 1488 set by Howard Alexander '68.

Kennedy capped his brilliant career at Bates by being named to the All-Maine, All NESCAC, All CBB, and Division III All New England All Star teams.

WOMEN'S HOOP

by Marsha Graef

New Coach Marsha Graef began her collegiate coaching debut this year at Bates, as the Bobcats continued their rebuilding program which began the previous season under interim coach Diane Boettcher. Bringing nine years of coaching experience from Kansas City with her, Coach Graef began to establish a foundation upon which to build a successful and competitive basketball team at Bates College.

Along with the team, the coaches developed a list of goals that would serve as criteria for evaluating the season; among those goals were:

1. development of team unity and cohesiveness;

2. stability of coaches and philosophy of program; (Graef is the 3rd coach in 4 years for the Bobcats);

3. overall development of individual skills, combined with team development in offensive and defensive skills and strategy;

4. to be competitive in every game.

5. to have a .500 season.

Although the record stands at 7-11, three of those losses were by only 2 points, and in games that Bates had been predicted to win. There were only 3 games during the season in which the Bobcats lost to opponents by more than 20 points.

Coach Graef attributes the highly successful season in terms of team unity and cohesiveness to tri-Captains of the team: Seniors Lisa Kelley, Althea Latady, and Leslie Latady. While not only contributing on the court (top leading scorers and rebounders) they lead the team by example off the court as well. Both Latady's were recognized by their academic contributions to Bates College by being selected to Phi Betta Kappa. Lisa Kelley became the 3rd player in Bates history to score 1,000 points and has captured new records:

1. game scoring record (36 points)

2. career scoring record (1,166 points)

3. team leader in scoring, rebounding, steals and assists for the season.

It is important to note that the Bobcats do not have an easy schedule. Some of the top ranked in New England are on their schedule: Colby College, Connecticut College, WPI, Babson, St. Joseph's College, University of Southern Maine, and Tufts University. Coach Graef feels that it is important to schedule tough competition in order to provide the challenge necessary to build a competitive program. This year, Bates College has begun to be known as a competitive basketball team.

Special Awards and Recognition:

Lisa Kelley:

4 time ECAC Honor Roll throughout the season (selected on a weekly basis); selected to the prestigious New England Women's Basketball Association (NEWBA) awarded the Evelyn Dillon Basketball Award by the coaches for being the MVP of the team this season.

Althea Latady:

Awarded (in a tie) the Nellie Bannister Burrill Award by the coaches for her contributions to the team, as a leader on and off the court.

Leslie Latady:

Awarded (in a tie) the Nellie Bannister Burrill Award by the coaches for her contributions to the team, as a leader on and off the court. She was awarded by the College Club of Bates College the Lindholm Scholar Athlete which goes to the female athlete in the senior class with the highest seven semester cumulative grade average, and must have lettered in 3 of her 4 years.

The Bates Men's Ski Team had a season that could be described as starting off well, rough in the middle, and finishing strong. At the 2nd Annual Bates Carnival, the Nordic men had one of their best performances of the season.

The Alpine team shone at the UNH Winter Carnival, with great individual performances in the GS and in the slalom. The Alpine men had one of their greatest races in the slalom at UVM.

The Nordic team skied well again at UVM. The next two Carnivals, Dartmouth and Middlebury, were trying times for the Bobcats. The Alpine guys could not seem to stand up and the Nordic guys dragged.

The highlight of the season was the Eastern Championships at Middlebury, VT. The Alpine Team skied very well, especially in the slalom — finishing 6th and crushing arch rival Dartmouth. The Nordic team pulled off a clutch come from behind victory over Bowdoin. The Men's ski team ended the season ranked 10th in the east and securing Division I status for the next season.

WOMEN ON SKIS!

by Laura Smith

The Women's Ski Team travelled with their male counterparts to their meets. The season entailed both hosting a winter carnival at Snorada and Pleasant Mountain and visiting other New England colleges to participate in their respective carnivals.

Bates hosted the first of the Division I winter carnival events with Dartmouth, UNH, Bowdoin, Colby, New England College, St. Lawrence, UVM, Williams, and Middlebury participating.

Among the 1986 standouts in the alpine realms were Captain Monika Samolis '87, Dawn Fitzgerald '88, Rosemary Hart '89, and Maria Joseph '89. Captain Mary Yost '87, Becky Flynn '89, Maureen Davis '87, and Karen Drugge '86 led the cross country teams.

Overall, the Women's Ski Team placed in the middle range at their carnival events. They placed sixth in the EISA Championships in the Middlebury Snow Bowl and sixteenth in the NCAA Championships in Stowe, Vermont.

Dangerous When Wet

by Elisa Fisher

Continuing with their consistently improving program, the Men's Swimming and Diving Team, led by Captain Jim Ross, bettered their dual meet record with an astonishing 7-2. This record exists as one of the top men's athletic team records of the 1985-86 school year.

The beginning of the season brought the team's only two losses, as well as its most exciting meet. Wesleyan, a new team on the Bates roster, was a difficult opponent to predict. Consequently, the 'pool cats' lost by a close margin. In their second meet, Bates gained some ground over their previous meets with Bowdoin, but their arch nemisis still proved too strong. But that's where the suffering ended. In their most exciting meet of the season, the Bates men clearly defeated Clark University in a battle to the final relay.

The Men's team only knew the word win, and had highlight defeats of both Middlebury and Colby. Bates was later strongly represented at the New England Championships, at Springfield College, by Juniors Will Letts, Jay O'Hair, and Hale Thurston; Sophmores Michael Godin and Paul Murphy; Freshmen Stu Barter, Art Jacobs, and Jon Simon.

Winning ways

by Elisa Fisher

In its third varsity season, the women's swimming and diving team continued its winning ways, boasting a 5-3 record. The lady Bobcats faced their most challenging schedule ever, starting off the season with a victory over Wesleyan in November. After returning from winter break, the team was off and running as they swept the events at an unofficial scrimmage against the Colby mules. The victory was a critical boost after the women suffered losses to rivals Bowdoin and Clark. The next two meets were extremely close, with the Bates women rallying from behind to defeat Middlebury. The women ended the season by soundly trouncing Colby, Brandeis, and Salem State.

In addition to success as a team, there were many outstanding individual performances throughout the season. Jennifer Rybeck, Patti Slovenski, Marcia Dougan, Elisa Fisher, Maria Uhle, Linnea Hensley, Wendy Genga, and Joan Farrington were the eight swimmers to qualify for New Englands. The Bates divers, one of the best squads in New England, proved to be a major factor in the team's winning efforts all season. All four women, Ann Rittenberg, Deb Smith, Allison Smith, and Jenny Briggs, qualified for New Englands.

The young Bates team holds promise for continued improvement next year, but will sorely miss graduating seniors, Katie Murphy, Jennifer Rybeck, Jennifer Nelson, Ann Rittenberg, and captain Patti Slovenski.

The 1985-86 Men's Indoor Track Team completed a winning season with a record of 6 wins, 5 losses. Led by senior co-captains Dan Burns and John Harris, the indoor season was highlighted with outstanding indiviual performances.

Division III New England Champions Reggie Floyd, Todd O'Brien, John Fitzgerald, and Matt Schecter demonstrated Bates' strength in the jumps, sprints, and distance events. All-Americans John Fitzgerald and Matt Schecter captured first place in the 5000 meter run and fourth place in the high jump respectively, at the NCAA III National Championships. The future looks bright for next year's indoor team as most of the team members will be returning next year.

Under the leadership of Coach Walter Slovenski, students are encouraged to achieve full potential in the classroom as well as on the track. This year's winner of the Milton Lindholm Scholar-Athlete Award is senior David I. Kennedy.

SETTING RECORDS

by Mary Capaldi

The Women's Indoor Track team, under the leadership of co-captains Kathleen Kramer, Anne Leonard, and Nadia White, had an impressive season achieving a team record of 13-4 while breaking and setting new records along the way. Finishing sixth in the Division III ECAC Indoor Track and Field championships held at Colby College in Waterville, the team witnessed impressive performances by Kathy Flaherty, Ann Millham, Anne Cole, Nadia White, and Andrea Kincannon.

Prestigous honors rained down upon the team during the 85-86 season. Bethany Maitland '89 set a new school record in the 55 meter hurdles, achieving an 8.82 second finish for the event. Anne Pride '89 threw the disc 41'1" in the 20lb. weight throw event and fellow Freshman Anne Milham set a new school record of 36'3/4" in the triple jump. Coach Court is looking forward to repeating this season's outstanding performance in the future.

Perhaps this season's biggest honor bestowed on the Women's Indoor Track team was the sending of Kincannon and Milham to the NCAA Division III Indoor Track Championships at Bethel College. Kincannon joined the ranks of track and field All-Americans with a long jump of 17'8 1/2". Millham turned in an impressive effort of 35'1/2" in the triple jump, capturing ninth place.

Next Year promises another season of victory. Though the team will be saying goodbye to some impressive senior talent, the potential power for success will be developed even further and will lead to a winning season.

Chivalry's Alive

The Fencing Club met the challenge this year with a mix of veterans and new members. During the competitive season, we had five practices per week in the Merrill Gym. The season consists of informal scrimmages and formal competitions. The year has been one of progress for the club: we have greatly increased our equipment inventory and our competition schedule. Last year we competed with two schools, this year we met four. We hope and expect to better this record again next year.

Our first competition was with UMA. It was a home game, and with two points in their favor (23,25), the UMA team was forced to leave due to time constraints.

In January, we competed with Vermont's Oxbow High School in a home game. This is not to be laughed at as they beat both BU and Dartmouth. Because of the large number of fencers on both sides, we had 3 pools; one each of beginners, intermediate, and advanced fencers. The beginners won in their pool, the intermediate group lost, and the advanced pool tied 4-4, giving Oxbow the win by two touches to settle the tie. The total outcome is ambiguous: we won more individual bouts, they won two pools as described.

Our new and exciting competitions this year were with Worcester Polytech. (WPI) which was a very close loss for us, and with Harvard.

The WPI meet saw friendly camaraderie and the representation of all three weapons: the Foil, Sabre, and Epée. Our Harvard away match suffered from insufficient warm-up time, and this was reflected in our performances. Nonetheless, as a coachless team, our performances were very respectable.

Hockey Club Excels Under New Leadership

by Mark Kausel

The Bates Icemen, under Coach Norm Bureau and General Manager Dave Gervais, had one of their most successful seasons in recent years. The team compiled a very respectable record of 5 wins, 3 losses, and 1 tie during a season which had many uncertainties. The success of the team can be attributed to the patience of Coach Norm Bureau in his first full year at the helm of the Bobcats. Dave Gervais and his highly recruited staff kept the team in "awesome" shape in the locker room. At times Gervais and his assistants outnumbered the players — with that kind of support it was difficult for the team to go wrong!

The offense, through tough forechecking and sharp passing, kept the Bobcat Icemen in control of their opponents. The physical styles of Seniors Bob Best, Ted Pell, Fred Dockery, and Junior Jeff Zacks were well complimented by the finesse of Seniors Gary Holmes, Mike Shea, Adam Frary, Junior Uppy Spencer, and Freshman Jeff Cook and Mark Mandel. The offense was one of the most consistent offenses that the Bobcats have had in recent years.

The defense lead by Seniors John Stewart and Peter Grant, Junior Justin Ward, and Sophomore Mark Storms, was crucial in the success of the team. The defense had two rookies, Junior Mark Kausal and Freshman Gary Mantha, who came through in the big games to shut down the opponents.

The goaltending duties were divided between Seniors Steve Sughrue and David Pheonix. Both tenders were able to come up with the big saves in key situations to lead the team to victory.

Those close to the team will remember this team as being one of the wildest and craziest teams at Bates. By the end of the year, the team discovered just how to have a "World Dance Party"; a tradition which will be carried on in upcoming years.

NOW VARSITY!

by Michael Wilson

The 1985-86 season for the Bates Squash Club was a success for both the men's and women's teams even though neither team won a match. The men played five matches against varsity teams from Bowdoin, Colby, and MIT. The women's team played five matches against varsity teams from Wellesley, Bowdoin, and Colby.

This was a year of increased participation by both men and women, with twenty-two men and nineteen women participating. Thirteen men were able to take part in at least one match during the season and thirteen women also played at least one match against a varsity college team. We were pleased with the play of our teams and with the many excellent matches.

During the fall the men played a double-elimination tourney to establish a ladder. With the ladder set, we began the spring term with twice weekly challenges for position on the ladder. There was intense competition for the honor of playing in our five matches with varsity teams from other colleges. The women also established a ladder and determined match participation on that basis. The changes in the ladders were so volatile that we kept our volunteer coach's computer busy maintaining rankings. If asked what our biggest success for 1985-1986 was, the answer would have to be — PARTICIPATION!

The Bates Squash Club has applied for varsity status for both men and women to begin with the 1986-87 season. This application has been endorsed by the Athletic Department Staff, has the Presidential blessing, and will be considered by the faculty in March and April of 1986. If granted we can look forward to a full schedule of matches within a year or two. This would be a legacy of the 1985-86 Squash Club to all future Bates squash players which would give us the greatest satisfaction.

Editor's note: Squash has attained varsity status for the 1986-87 season.

SPLASH!

by Mary Capaldi

Though only existing at Bates for a few years, the Bates Water Polo Club earns their reputation for providing members with good exercise and good, clean fun. Coach/Captain Kevan Gibson organized practices, an instructive clinic, and several matches against Bowdoin, Brandeis, Colby and Middlebury to establish the club at Bates during the past season.

A strong swimming background is encouraged by Gibson for all who are interested in joining the team, yet anyone with any desire to play is very welcome. Forty people were present in the 25 meter pool on Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays to learn the skills and techniques for water polo as authorized by the NCAA.

When recruiting team members Gibson commented, "if our Water Polo program doesn't get you psyched, our parties will!" Next year the Bates community looks for ward to seeing more victories from the Water Polo club.

NEW LOOK

by Bill Carlezon

Bates started the 1986 season with a completely new look as they moved up to the Garcelon East playing field, but in the end it was the familiar "Cat Attack" offense which powered the Bobcats to an impressive 17-9 record.

Senior Captain Dave Campbell enjoyed his best year at the plate (.330, 6HR) and in his centerfield position, as he continued to dazzle both fans and opposing hitters with spectacular catches. Rounding out perhaps the best defensive outfield ever were the powerful Chris Hickey (6 HR), and Seniors John Rozen and John Simourian, who split the right field/ DH duties. Ron Garrison became a legend as he hatched the first hit against a Tufts pitcher who had thrown 3 consecutive no-hitters, while Brian Bonollo chased him from the mound with one of his 4 round-trippers. Eric Schlpak set a new record for hits in a single season with 43.

As the weather heated up, so did the Bobcat pitching arms. Senior lefty Bill Carlezon broke the career wins record with a final 12-1 mark, winning his last 11 decisions. The ace of the staff was sophomore Dennis Gromelski (4-2, 4.90 ERA), followed by the bearded intimidator, Chip Plante. Bates will sorely miss the services of Bob Bezar and flame-thrower Tom Mourkas, who came through in front of New England's media for the big win over Tufts. The future, however, seems to promise success for Chick Leahey's Bobcats: just ask freshman Pete Fredrickson, who belted a homerun on his first collegiate swing.

TOO MANY CLOSE CALLS!

The Bates women's softball team had a mixed season, with a final record of 11-9. Emily Gabler, Brenda Gostanian, and Laurie Pinchbeck achieved MAIAW All-State Awards, while Joanna Stevens was selected to the NEISCA All-Star Team. The Bates team qualified for the NIAC, but lost in the semi-finals 0-1 to Colby, in a tie breaking contest. A close contest saw #1 seeded Bates lose to UMPI in the MAIAW semi-finals.

There is hope for next year, however; luck is bound to catch up with the hard working squad next season!

NOT SO LAX

by Chris White

For the third consecutive season the Men's Lacrosse team compiled eleven wins; the team's overall record from these three years now stands at 33-6. This year's team, at one point in the season, was ranked #3 in the New England Division III poll and #10 in the Division I poll. Despite our outstanding season (11-3), the team was passed over when the E.C.A.C. Tournament teams were chosen.

Seniors Bob Best (Attack) and John Boyle (midfield) were selected to play in the New England All-Division All-Star Game. Other outstanding offensive players included Seniors Dean Lindner, Lauren McMeekin, Juniors Tor Cowan, Mike O'Connor, Hank Baer, and Freshmen Jeff Cook, Jeff Gitlin, and Buddy Rosenthal.

The defense this year was anchored by Senior Captain Chris White who had a stellar season in goal. The close defense consisted of Juniors Ted Buckman, Rob Gabbe, and Mark Kausel.

The trip to San Diego, California, over February vacation provided the team with the opportunity to discover its strengths and weaknesses. Impressive wins this season over Tufts, Colby, and New England College highlighted the team's winning streak of eight games. Tough losses to Colby and Bowdoin late in the season were disappointments in an otherwise successful season.

Spring Success

by Wire Reports

The Women's Lacrosse team had a smashing season, amassing a 7-4 record under the direction of Coach Suzanne Coffey. Rigorous training showed results — not only did the team as a whole vastly improve its record, but so did individuals — this season included some of the best individual performances ever. Susan Chick and Anne Van Heuven were named All-American players while Erica Norton received an honourable mention. Five members went on to nationals as New England district players.

Four key matches were lost by close margins, where in past years Bates had not been a serious contender. Other factors contributing to the team's success included changes in the offensive play and varied attack. Despite a more difficult schedule next year, Coach Coffey expects her team to continue in its success.

STILL RUNNING

Robertson

by Wire Reports

Although the team managed a 3-2 record, their success is better seen through their second place finishes in both the Maine State Meet and in the NESCAC contest. In the state meet, 6 individuals earn titles: Matt Schecter, Todd O'Brien, John Fitzgerald, Matt Hall, Paul Slovenski, and Mark Hatch. Both Hatch and Fitzgerald continued their reigns in the NESCAC meet, while Schecter claimed a new school record in the High jump — 6'8". Fortunately, most of the outstanding members will be returning to hone their skills next season.

RECORDS SET

Finishing with a 9-4 record and fourth place at NESCAC, this year's Women's Spring Track team had a strong season. Eight school records were set and many individuals placed in the championship meets. Anne Millham set three of the new records with a 16'2" longjump, a 35'6" triple jump, and a time of 12.76 seconds in the 100m. Anne also received All NESCAC, All Region, and All New England honors in the triple jump. Linda Jones was All Region in the hammer and captured the hammer record with a throw of 113'1". Kathy Kraemer earned All New England honors in the 5000m with a time of 18:11. Carol Yanchuck had a record throw of 108'7.5" in the javelin. Three relay records were set also. The 4 x 100 team of Maitland, Cole, Leonard, and Millham ran 52.75, and in the 4 x 400, Homans, O'Leary, Leonard, and Pappalardo ran 4:28.6. The 4 x 800 team of Homans, Kraemer, O'Leary, and Pappalardo set the record at 9:46.57 Other strong performances were turned in by Kerry O'Leary in the 1500m, Anne Cole in the triple jump, and Annie Leonard in the hurdles.

HISTORY MADE

by Olive A. Sport

Bates College Varsity Tennis Team had its best season in the history of the school in 1986. Led by Senior co-captains and four year lettermen Greg Fish and Scott Hoffman, the team compiled an 11-3 dual match record against the toughest schedule the team has ever faced. Wins over Connecticut College, Brandeis, and Bowdoin highlighted the season.

The Bobcats were not only successful in dual matches, they were also strong in tournament play. The team's third place finish at NESCAC's was its best showing ever at a major tournament. Other honors for the Bobcats included the CBB championship, State of Maine championship, and a fourth place ranking in New England Division III. Individual honors went to freshman Paul Gastonguay who qualified for the Nationals and sophomores Brad Easterbrook, and Bryan Duffy who captured the NESCAC and State of Maine Doubles Titles. With only captains Fish and Hoffman graduating, the future of the team looks outstanding.

CBB CHAMPIONS!

by Bob Hatch

The 1986 golf season was at least met with average success. The team dual match record was 9-9 and our showing in most of our major championships was quite impressive:

1) We won the CBB championship

2) The team was third in the State of Maine championships behind USM and Husson

3) At the NESCAC championship we were fifth, losing to Williams, Amherst, Hamilton, and Trinity and defeating Middlebury, Bowdoin, Colby and Wesleyan.

Individually, Dave Larrivee was easily our most consistent golfer. He had several scores in the 70's with his best effort a 74 in the CBB championship. His average was 81.6 for twelve outings. Our team captain, Steve Sughrue '86, had a good year with an average of 87 and proved to be a very good team leader. Junior Gavin O'Brien also had an 87 average and we look forward to his return and continued improvement in play next year. Two freshmen helped the team considerably; Keith Blanchard and Russ Libby. Also, for the first time in golf history at Bates, a woman "made" the squad; Laurie Kidder, a freshman who will certainly play some golf for Bates over the next three years.

by Geoff Shilling

The Bates College Sailing Club is a collection of students who share sailing as a mutual disorder. The club has some 5 420's that are sailed either on Lake Auburn or Taylor Pond as well as a garage on campus to store the gear in the winter. Since the club has only club status, there is no paid coach and not much support from the college. The team still manages to participate in a few regattas in New England as well as the Corinitians in October.

Despite the lack of an official boathouse and good equipment, the club is active in several areas of sailing. Instruction is provided for those who have never been sailing. The boats are also raced, but most of the actual competition occurs at other schools. While the future of the club is somewhat uncertain, its members still turn out for a day on the water when the wind is up.

BATES

. . . Have you seen the '85 Mirror . . . ?

OUR CLUBS & ORGANIZATIONS

"Who's going to sell bus tickets at lunch?"; "I need people to hang around after Saturday's dance to clean up."; "Who is in charge of refreshments for tomorrow's forum?"; "I need someone to spread table flyers!"

Try to imagine Bates without extracurricular activities. You would have to eliminate the Little Brother/ Sister program, the multitudes of dances, weekend jaunts, Trivia Night, Deansmen and Merrimanders concerts, student publications, and much more. Suddenly women would be asked if they could be walked home from lunch, the extracurricular offices become private study rooms, the library stays open 24 hours for lack of anything else to do, Pierce House undergoes renovations to accomodate the droves of people who come to view what used to be the definition of fun on Wednesday nights. The scene is depressing to say the least.

In one way or another, everyone at Bates benefits from the activities of one or more extracurricular organizations on campus. Whether we ride a vacation bus home, take part in Winter Carnival, read The Student or pick up a copy of The Mirror, we are taking part in an integral part of Bates. In addition, we are participating in the results of many people at Bates dedication to a quality collegiate experience. But they don't do it all for everyone else. The excitement, fun and hardwork of belonging to anyone of these organizations are reasons in themselves to be committed. Knowing that you are working with friends toward a more fulfilling experience here at Bates is gratifying in itself. Become involved!

Afro-American Society

SUPPORT! ... PEOPLE! ... DANCES! ... DINNERS! ... TRIAD! ... BARBEQUES! ... CULTURAL AWARNESS! ... DYNAMIC GUEST SPEAKERS!

We are the Afro-American Society and this is just a part of what we do and what we are about. Afro-Am is a cultural organization which promotes good will and appreciation of cultural diversity among students. We frequently interact with other campus organizations to bring about exciting events.

The club sponsors cultural and social activities that reflect the Afro-American roots of American life. The club stays abreast of the political issues that affect the lives of minorities in our society, bringing them into focus. These programs help us to understand the levels of interaction among all groups in American society, and to pursue harmonious relationships among students on campus.

Amnesty International

Give a minute to Amnesty International

Thousands of peacable men and women are in prison today because of their political or religious beliefs. Many are held without charge or trial. Many have been tortured.

The Bates College Chapter of Amnesty International is part of a smaller division of Amnesty called the campus network. This is composed of numerous other colleges throughout the country. The primary goals of the campus networks are to write letters on behalf of individual prisoners in need of medical attention, to write to individual countries who are abusing human rights, and to educate the campus on human rights issues.

The Bates Arts Society serves to promote all aspects of arts at Bates. Some of our more specific events include bus trips to Boston's Museum of Fine Arts, candle light coffee-houses, the Beaux Arts Ball, and the Medieval Festival, as well as the sponsorship of films, lectures, plays, and presentations. We are a congenial group willing to support diverse artistic endeavors. This year we sponsored many contradances and several performances, as well as our annual events.

Bates College Imperialists

The Bates College Imperialists are dedicated to providing a forum for the discussion of world issues and increasing campus awareness of pressing world concerns. We are a social focus for students, faculty, and alumni interested in examining alternative approaches to these problems and to being fully informed, the absolute prerequisite to forming intelligent opinions.

During the semester, BCI has held weekly forum discussions on topics such as Libya, Lebanon, Grenada, Eastern Europe, and Northern Ireland, to name a few. We also hold film showings, parties, and other relevant social activities.

Campus Association

We are an active service organization dedicated to improving the quality and consciousness of the Bates College community. Through our three commissions and with your participation we work to bring the college, both students and faculty, closer together. Our diverse programs provide exposure to new ideas and viewpoints. The extension of our programs to Lewiston-Auburn makes us more than just a campus in a community. We are a working part of the community and strive for growth.

Chapel Board

The Chapel Board is the religious organization on campus which advises the college chaplain, distributes chapel offerings, and holds College Worship. We hold meetings to discuss such issues as the effects of interfaith marriages, religion and politics, sexuality, or just thinking about God in general. We are also involved in community services such as aiding abused women and supporting UNICEF. Overall we had a successful year sponsoring lectures and bringing increased awareness to campus.

The Bates College Rowing Association has grown rapidly since its inception this past fall. Founded by Arnold Robinson '87, the first meeting saw the presence of over 80 students. The group is using a five mile stretch of the Androscoggin for its practices and is receiving guidance from Coach Jim Dowe.

The BCRA still must obtain funds for the purchase of new equipment, but with the enthusiasm demonstrated by the student body for the sport of Crew, this hurdle should prove to be surmountable.

Deansmen

We're the Deansmen, a small group of nutty guys who happen to sing. We perform a combination of barbershop, folk, '50 tunes, and an occasional baroque ballad. Most of the music is performed a cappella, but a few tunes do use the piano. We performed about 14 times this year, including Parents Weekend and Christmas.

Bates Democrats

Political Consciousness has never been more important than it is today. The pace and content of the issues which are not being discussed and resolved require the best efforts of active and informed citizens.

The Bates Democrats provide a forum for discussion of important political issues of the day. We work toward and support political awareness on the Bates College campus.

The Bates Economics Society was formed in 1981 with the purposes of acquainting perspective Economics majors with the field, introducing current and potential Economics majors to the diverse career opportunities that are related directly or indirectly to the discipline, and generally increasing the visibility of the Economics department and the profession for the campus as a whole. To these ends, the Economics Society sponsors economics seminars, academic and business speakers, films, and happy hours which include the Economics faculty.

Film Board

The Film Board is responsible for bringing 16 mm excitement to the campus. This year we had one of our best years, bringing everything from Repo Man to the Terminator to Bates. We constantly strive to eliminate and alleviate the ever present cabin fever, providing an alcohol free alternative for the entire campus.

Ultimate Frisbee

ODE TO A FRISBEE DISC

With the spring, in the fall, through the winter snow a little disc, like birds in flight, is caught and is thrown, and with each catch and with each toss, the goal line does appear, until the time you lay it out, and snatch it from the air.

Oh, the frisbee team is a wooly bunch, and let me set that straight. You'll never see a solemn face around that curving plate.

Sure, we play for fun! We never curse or swear. But when the game is tight, and UMO's about to fight, we'll dive and catch and run!

Oh, the frisbee team's a wonderful team, and let me tell you why. The people are great! We love that plate, especially when it flies.

So, here's to the frisbee team, may you always catch that disc. If that flat ball comes your way, forget the times you missed.

G.L.S.A.

The Bates Gay-Lesbian-Straight Alliance (GLSA) is here to help the campus community understand and deal with issues related to sexual orientation. As the largest minority group on campus, we serve primarily as a support social group for the members of the Bates lesbian/gay community, but we also provide information and lead discussion on homosexuality. Recent events have included forums on "The Minority Experience at Bates", "Homophobia", and "Religion, Politics, and Public Policy: Gay Rights." Also, we continued our series of dances and happy hours. GLSA all-campus social events are well known for their relaxed, fun atmosphere.

The Student Health Advisory Board is a student run organization which provides health information and sponsors health related programs for the student body. The organization also meets periodically with Health Center members, giving them necessary feedback about their services.

International Club

Who said that the International Club was only for foreign students? The growth of the club to enclose the local shores proved rich in its dividends. The cheerful camaraderie of the beach trip in the fall carried through to a more than successful International Dinner — when the world locked forces to feed a capacity crowd of one-hundred and fifty. It was an unforgetable culinary experience for those cooking, tasting and (alas!) everyone begged for more. Less formal events were the International Beer Parties that were equally successful.

James Gleason Club

Established at Bates in 1982, the James Gleason Fan Club has since grown in quality, although not in quantity.

Gleason raises pertinent and provoking questions:

— who is getting the South African Scholarship money?

— where did paisley come from?

— why are there not male cheerleaders?

— did the Grinch steal Christmas?

— should we worry about hypocrisy?

— why can't other people ask questions ?

While asking these questions, Gleason has solved the parking problem, survived receiving a letter from Dean C. equating dorm damage with low GPA's, perfected the art of disliking, and tried to make the world a better place.

We salute you.

Have you ever felt at a loss to do something with your hands? If so, we have the answer. Our group teaches people how to put their phalanges to work keeping objects in the air. Juggling is a constructive manifestation of man's natural tendency to fidget. Juggling has been around for as long as man has been fidgetting. Many students have tapped into this powerful tradition of marvel performance this year.

Our equipment and enthusiasm, along with leaders Ken Woodard, Bill Rohloff, Shari Weitzen, and power-juggler Tom Duff, provided Bates students with the instruction necessary to break into an up-and-coming performing art.

Lawrance Chemical Society

The Lawrance Chemical Society brings students and faculty of the Chemistry Department together in an informal atmosphere and brings visiting scholars to the campus for lectures and seminars in chemistry and related fields. It also gives students an opportunity to be members of a certified affiliate of the American Chemical Society.

The famous Lawrance Chemical Society Friday Afternoon Bowling League provided Bates students a chance to meet informally with professors. Chemistry majors are also assisted in the choice of employment or graduate school after Bates.

Legal Studies Club

The Legal Studies Club is an organization whose members are interested in the investigation of current legal issues. Many Bates participants have the primary goal of attaining acceptance into law school. As a result, the club attempts to prepare perspective law students for entry into a legal career. This entails explaining law school testing and admissions and raising student consciousness about various law-related fields.

In addition, the club provides lectures and forums in attempt to foster further awareness of our legal system. Additional programs include debates, moot courts, and conferences. Furthermore, the Club has recently established a program with local law firms in the Lewiston-Auburn area called the Shadow Program. This program allows students to follow lawyers through their work-day, thus gathering knowledge which may influence their career choices.

Medical Arts Society

The Bates Medical Arts Society is open to all students interested in exploring health-related issues and careers. Past activities include hosting speakers from medical schools and numerous medically related professions, and participating in volunteer programs at Central Maine Medical Center and St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston.

We sponsored one colloquium which addressed specific health related issues. We provide programs related to the Medical Arts which are of general interest to the entire Bates community and are well attended.

The Merimanders are a group of women who enjoy singing. We have been an active part of the community since 1959, but we are not a part of the Music Department. Songs and concerts are determined by the entire group and we perform a variety of music ranging from the 30's "Boogie" to the 80's "Rock", including artists ranging from the Andrew Sisters to the Eagles.

The Mirror

The Mirror is a bound version of the 1985-86 year at Bates, and is available to everyone. It captures events, emotions, and scenes through photography and copy which will jar the viewer's memory in the years to come.

The 1986 Mirror advanced technically this year through the purchase of an IBM computer from Taylor Publishing Company. Not only do the editors use this computer for facilitating organized copy-writing and editing, but the computer is also used for designing lay-outs. The Mirror is one of two yearbooks in the nation which currently uses the computer for layouts, under the direction of Taylor Publishing Company.

A relatively small but dedicated staff has created this 240 page book. Treasure it!

Bates Outing Club

As part of the Bates community, you are a member of the Bates Outing Club (BOC). The BOC sponsors many trips in the New England wilderness throughout the year such as hiking, backpacking, canoeing, swimming, skiing, and snowshoing. These activities are an ideal break from studying. We are the second oldest, the largest,and one of the most active clubs in the country. Joining our club is a great way of meeting people. Who can forget the Clambakes, Winter Carnival, skiing, canoeing, and traying?

Physics Society

The Physics Society promotes an interest in physics and astronomy among the campus community. To this end, the society sponsors physics lectures by scientists from other institutions, as well as our own students and faculty. These are held every Thursday, and are open to everyone. The subjects of these talks range from extragalactic astronomy to superconductivity, with just about everything in between. The Society sponsors films occasionally and slide shows from places such as NASA or the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Other than this somewhat serious aspect, the Society is extremely informal. Members do not even have to be physics majors. In addition to the weekly luncheon meetings, social events included barbecues, field trips, and wine and cheese parties.

Politics Club

Under the direction of Jim Goldsmith, the Politics Club experienced a rebirth this year. A club that had been in decay during the past few years, it was renewed in January and again started holding happy hours, dinner meetings, as well as sponsoring lectures. With the forceful leadership of Sophomore Doug Foster, the Politics Club is assured of a bright future. Speakers on the agenda for 1986-87 include Henry Kissinger, Gary Hart, and Mao Tse Tung.

Psychology Society

Front Row — J. Suder, B. Stevens, V. Ince, K. Anderson, K. Orem. Middle Row — K. Manley, D. Whitney. Back Row — R. Hines, M. Goldberg, B. Bezar, J. Sherwin, S. Williams. Missing — M. Gelbein, M. Raskin, C. Brolin.

The Psychology Society returned to action this year under the leadership of officers Rodney Hines, Jeff Sherwin, Bobby Bezar, and Michael Goldberg. The Society sought to increase the awareness of many psychologically related issues on campus, improve career related resources, improve student/faculty relations, and provide an amiable environment for those involved in the study of human behavior. Although much time was invested in membership and funding drives, we were able to organize a number of activities which included movies, field trips, and happy hours.

Renaissance Film Society

The Renaissance Film Society is a relatively new organization on campus, dedicated to providing the college community and the Lewiston-Auburn area with the alternative of artistic, cultural, and experimental films. This is a progressive group that offers students the opportunity to explore interests in filmmaking and criticism, as well as in viewing. All members are included in the process of choosing films. This includes the more technical aspects of running such an organization, such as publicity and film projection. Some of the more popular films shown over the 1985-86 academic year were Bertolucci's Last Tango in Paris, Herzog's Aguirre, The Wrath of God, Fassbinder's The Marriage of Maria Braun, and Scorcese's The Last Waltz.

Representative Assembly

The first major highlight for the Representative Assembly came during the dedication of the Muskie Archives when President Wes Toner and Secretary Kim Lopes presented a letter of congratulations to former Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie.

The Bates Life Committee searched for ways to end the bike theft problem, while the Food Committee investigated the feasiblility of a meal plan at Bates. The Bugdet Reform Committee attempted to alleviate the controversy in the annual budget process.

Finally, the South African Scholarship Committee sponsored a fund-raiser to aid needy students in South Africa. The committee collected money from students, faculty, and administration in excess of its targeted $5600. Personal contributions from the trustees of the college brought the total to over $7000.

Riding Club

The Bates College Riding Club is a growing club, acquiring new members constantly. Opportunities exist for both lessons and trail rides at all experience levels. The riding club helps members improve their skills while enjoying the Maine scene.

Stage Band

The Bates Stage Band is a straight set up jazz band playing charts from the forties as well as current hits for big bands. We play three concerts during the year, including Parent's weekend and graduation.

Rehearsals are once a week and maintain a casual yet productive atmosphere. We encourage any musician with interest to join us.

The Bates Student

The Student, the Bates College newspaper, is published 18 times each academic year, and is distributed on Friday afternoons.

Students involved in this organization learn the many facets of professional journalism; not only do they learn first hand to interview, write, meet deadlines, edit, and produce, they also learn to ethically inform the Bates campus and the Lewiston community of relevant events and issues. This valuable experience leads many students into a career of journalism.

The Bates Student is an award-winning member of the American Scholastic Press Association and of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

Any student may join the paper by coming to a staff meeting, writing an article, or by helping with production.

Student Athletic Trainers

Bates Athletic Trainers apply learned sciences for the benefit of the sports oriented community. The field of athletic training provides students with a variety of learning experiences in anatomy, physiology, kinesiology, and the science of prevention and management of athletic injuries, first aid, and physical therapy.

Student athletic trainers prepare athletes and provide coverage for practices and competitions, assist head trainers with rehabiliation and evaluation of injuries, and maintain the training rooms. Student athletic trainers meet every Thursday night to prepare schedules, review skills, and to increase knowledge.

Peckham, H. Fine, B. Carlezon, D. Shahinfar, T. Fortin, B. Burnham, B. Rohloff, R. Myers, N. Wharton, D. Thornton, J. Smith.

WRBC is one of the largest and most active organizations on campus. Students with an interest in broadcasting or just to "be heard over the airwaves" participate in WRBC. We serve a 15 mile radius of Bates College and the surrounding area with 24 hour continuous programming during the academic year.

In addition to the obvious position of disk jockey, there are positions in the News, Special Programming, Sports, and Music areas. The philosophy of WRBC is simple: to give as many people as possible a taste of radio. Nowhere else but in college radio are students able to experience the thrills of broadcasting in such an artistically unrestricted manner.

Women's Awareness

Women's awareness has been quite active this year. The purpose of our club is to promote awareness of women's issues, problems and achievements on campus. This year we have managed to do this through a number of forums, presentations, parties, and coffee house. In the small community of Bates College, we are able to stimulate new feminist perspectives by sharing various attitudes, feelings, and experiences. Beyond Bates College, we hope to provoke a greater worldwide women's awareness.

Bates Christian Fellowship

Bates Christian Fellowship is a chapter of Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, a National Student Christian Organization. We meet regularly in both large and small groups for bible study, discussion, worship, and prayer. BCF provides a challenging and nurturing experience for fellowship and personal growth. As we grow together in the "grace and knowledge of Jesus Christ" (2nd Peter 3:18), we hope to provide an open forum for the discussion of spiritual issues on campus.

An Ending of Sorts

Dean Reese turned off the sound system and Midnight Madness was over.

I dragged myself back to the steps of The Bill and sat down on the furniture that Maintenance had told us to keep indoors. I was something short of sober, but still enough in control to begin to reflect on life as I knew it. "So this is it", I thought, "This is Bates."

As my eyes began to close, two wandering seniors invited me to climb onto the roof of the Olin Arts Center with them. I felt justified in this action, considering the fact that I would never enjoy the use of the building. We never did get onto the roof — so we walked around inside, trying to imagine white walls and carpeting — and we got bored.

So we went to Mt. David and that was better — well, better than the Arts Center — but it still wasn't what I was looking for . . . It didn't seem like an adequate ending for four years of my life, four pretty important years.

I went back to The Bill, slept for an hour, got up, got dressed and went to Commencement (silly name for an ending). And I enjoyed it, sort of. It was really hot in those black robes. I packed and said half-hearted good-byes to my friends (half-hearted because it is hard to say something meaningful to someone you may never see again) and promised to keep in touch. I got in the car, drove to the Auburn exit (you learn after four years that the Auburn exit is cheaper than the Lewiston exit) and went home.

And I still haven't found a good ending, something that can sum up everything that Bates has meant — and I won't find it. But I do know that this yearbook will help me remember it. Sure, right now school seems really close. but in 20 or 30 years it won't. So I can look at these photos, read what has been written, and know that it's the closest thing to the best ending that I'll ever find.

Bates Theatre Productions

Presents Gilbert and Sullivan's

Iolanthe

May 16, 17, 18

Bates College Chapel

8:15 p.m.

Twenty-five years previous to the action of the opera, Iolanthe, a fairey, had committed the capital crime of marrying a mortal. The Queen of the Fairies had commuted the death sentence to banishment for life — on condition that Iolanthe must leave her husband without explanation and never see him again. Her son Strephon has grown up as a shepherd, half fairy, half mortal.

Thus began the play that was to involve a lot of us during short-term!
